

Procedures for Initiating Online Learning Courses

Faculty interested in developing a course for distance learning should obtain approval from the department chair, dean, and the Executive Director for Online Learning. The development of a new course for distance delivery (one not previously offered) must be approved by the University Curriculum Committee.